THE DOLLAR WEEKLY BULLETIN

John E. O'Berry has reduced the subscription price of the WEEKLY CAIRO BULLETIN to One Dollar per annum, making it the cheapest paper published in Southern Illinois.

THE MISSOURI 'REPUBLICAN' IS IN DANGER of falling in the slough of disloyalty to the Democratic party. It is leaning towards Grant. It says: "In his struggle with the 'corruptionists,' President Grant has the hearty sympathy of all good citizens, and if he perseveres until a final and complete triumph is gained, he will receive the applause and gratitude of all patriots, regardless of party distinctions."

It is rumored that the Cairo 'Bulletin' has fopped over to the Radical side since the election. We have heretofore regarded O'Berry as a conscientious man. Well, he, like others, has a right to choose his political associates. We wish John success morally, socially, religiously and pecuniarily, but politically we trust he will come to grief.

The 'Kentuckian' says it is rumored that the BULLETIN has "fopped." The 'Kentuckian' is correct. That rumor has prevailed in this neighborhood for some time; but the 'Kentuckian' receives the BULLETIN, daily, and should read it—does read it. The 'Kentuckian' therefore ought to know the present political situation of the BULLETIN. We have taken precisely the same position, the 'Kentuckian' took after the late election, and the 'Kentuckian' ought to be informed respecting its own political status.

The eligibility of Gov. Oglesby to the United States senatorship is now a subject of discussion among rural editors. An Alton paper, somewhat influenced by the sluggishness of that village, sees in the constitution a clause which in its opinion excludes Mr. Oglesby from the prize of the senatorship. If the Alton editor would not see in this opinion an heresay, we hope our peculiar friends herabouts will not see in this opinion an evidence that we are inclined to support Gov. Oglesby for the senatorship. They have no right to do so, because we hold that it does not follow that a man who is not a fool is a Radical.

NEURALGIA.

This is said to be a non-inflammatory pain in a nerve. Throughout all this great valley of the Mississippi there are a great many people suffering from diseases under many different names, such as neuralgia, lumbago, sciatica, hemioria, tic-doloroux, which may all be classed under this general name of neuralgia, which has its immediate cause from the same source as the agues and fevers of such localities, whatever that may be. In but few cases is it accompanied with inflammation of the nerve itself or its sheath or covering; if so, it then goes by the name of neuritis or neurilemia. Yet for all this, with slight modifications, it is amenable to the same general treatment; and the recent discoveries in electrotherapeutics, (that is the application of electricity to the cure of diseased conditions,) show what a deal of suffering can be relieved by the careful and intelligent application of this wonderful agent. In the short time in which it has been used by medical men in Europe and America, a whole volume might be filled with the accounts of its wonderful cures, after other means often really barbarous. In proof of this assertion I will relate several instances from abundant records in my possession.

Dr. Wiesner of Tubingen, gives us two cures, one of which is remarkable for the barbarity of the preliminary treatment according to the old school therapeutics.

The first was a man of seventy-four years old who had suffered from neuralgia, affecting all three branches of the trigeminal, (these are nerves of the face called the fifth pair.) All manner of treatment had been tried during this twenty-nine years of suffering, with no good result. A red spot three-quarters of an inch long, below the orbit of the affected side, was all the indication externally of his protracted suffering.

Finally electricity began to attract attention, and was suggested as an experiment. The painful parts were included between the poles of a galvanic battery, and improvement was unmistakably perceptible. After twenty sittings he was entirely relieved of his more than a quarter century of suffering. Only a slight relapse has ever since occurred, which was immediately relieved by the same means. The other case was a man sixty-five years old, who had suffered excruciating pain from what is called facial tic, for five years. All other known remedies failing, Professor Belloth divided the infra-orbital nerve; the pain returned. This cutting was repeated, then a resection of a portion of the upper jaw. This failing, the buccinator was cut, then the posterior, dental, then the mental, (these are names of nerves of the face.) After all this butchery, the common carotid was tied, (one of the great arteries of the neck,) and this with only temporary relief. Finally electricity was suggested, and the parts included between moist electrodes, for five minutes, twice each day. Improvement as before was rapid, but marred with frequent relapses. One electrode was then introduced in the mouth, and in two months treatment all pain and sensitiveness was gone, and with many others, he thinks this modern discovery, for the relief of suffering, the most wonderful achievement of the age.
